MME. JOHANNA GADSKI APPEARS AT TRINITY AUDITORIUM

The present season finds Mme. Johanna Gadski, the great Wagnerian soprano, at the pinnacle toward which she has moved steadily and surely since the beginning of her public career—the acknowledged queen of lyric and dramatic song. Re-engaged for the Metropolitan Opera House to sing the Wagnerian roles with which her name is instinctively associated, and an increasing number of Italian roles with each season, furnish fresh evidence of her art's constant growth.

From the moment of her American debut as Elsa in "Lohengrin" her triumph was little short of sensational. For two seasons she remained a member of the Damrosch-Ellis Opera Company, constantly increasing her repertoire.

Her recital repertoire is as truly remarkable as her operatic roles, including all the finest of the German lieder, and some of the lovely Italian folk-songs. Her program for Los Angeles will be entirely different on each appearance, including in addition to the leader numbers arias from the operas in which she has been most successful, and a number of songs in English.

She will appear at Trinity auditorium the evening of Tuesday, Dec. 7, and Saturday matinee, Dec. 11. Student rates are also given when card is presented, properly signed.

Mrs. E. B. Moore entertained the Christmas Committee of the Methodist Church at her home last Wednesday.

UNDERWRITERS ISSUE A WARNING IN REGARD TO CHRISTMAS DECORATIONS

Your attention is hereby respectfully called to the fact that the introduction about premises of Christmas greens, harvest specimens, moving picture exhibits, and other inflammable materials, such as cotton to represent snow, and the like, introduces an additional hazard not contemplated by the underwriters in issuing policies of indemnity covering the usual fire hazard; and in this connection we refer you to one of the conditions of the California standard form of fire insurance policy, wherein it is stipulated that:

"Unless otherwise provided by agreement endorsed hereon or added hereto, this company shall not be liable for loss or damage occurring (a) while the hazard be materially increased by any means within the control of the insured."

In addition to the danger to property from displays referred to, the danger to life in crowded stores or places of meeting by reason of a panic occasioned by a fire, even though it be small and easily controlled, is so great that the underwriters, who have made a study of such hazards, would only be partly fulfilling their duty should they fail to give warning.

Use only non-inflammable decorations. Asbestos fibre is a good substitute for cotton. A tree should be set securely, so that the children, in reaching for things, cannot tip it over. Do not permit decorations near gas jets. Do not make the slightest change in electrical wiring without consulting the Electrical Inspector.

PROGRAM FOR FRIDAY EVE. AT STAR THEATRE

On Friday evening at the Star Theatre the ladies of the P. T. A. of the Magnolia School will offer "The Passion Play," a four-reel feature. On this evening the drawing for the doll will take place. As an added feature the Tropico band has consented to play in front of the theater before the show starts. Everybody urged to be present and help the ladies purchase a piano.

ALUMNI OF HIGH SCHOOL TO MEET FOR GOOD TIME ON DEC. 18

Following a well established custom, the Alumni Association of the Tropico-Glendale High School will meet for their holiday jolly-up on the evening of the 18th, at the High School auditorium. This informal meeting, to which each graduate is entitled to bring one guest, has been found most valuable in keeping up interest in the body and is a sort of preliminary to the production of the annual play which will be produced early in the spring.

Each of the classes which have graduated in past years will be required to furnish one number for the evening's entertainment. One feature of the program will be the play, "My Son from College," by Owen Rhodes. The sketch has been rejuvenated and reprinted and will be presented by a strong cast, including Dwight Stephenson and the author.

Tropico alumni, don't forget the date!

STEPHEN A. PACKER AN- NOUNCES HIS CANDI- DACY FOR SUPER- VISOR'S OFFICE

It has long been considered desirable that Glendale should have a representative on the Board of Supervisors. Just as the necessary vacancy occurs the right man appears for the place. Mr. Stephen A. Packer, 1432 Riverdale Drive, who has been a resident in Glendale for a number of years, has so far commended himself to a large majority of the people of Glendale that he has been urged to consent to run as candidate for the position of supervisor in this supervisory district.

Mr. Packer has graciously acceded to the wishes of his friends and is now a candidate for the position. His friends have taken the matter of his candidature entirely into their own hands and are making the canvass for him. They have circulated a petition in his favor. This petition now contains more than 2000 names.

Coming to Glendale from the State of Washington, Mr. Packer at once threw himself into the work of advancing the welfare of the city he had chosen as his residence. For several years he has been active in every good civic work. He has erected several buildings in Glendale, both in the residence and business section, and is in every way a man of affairs and experience.

Now that the campaign for his candidature has been fairly started Mr. Packer will carry it on himself. His energy and knowledge are likely to make this campaign a success. He will make a thorough visitation of the field, carrying on a minute canvass of the constituency. He has friends everywhere, in every walk of life, and his own practical experience will enable him to take advantage of every point in his favor.

There cannot be any doubt of the immense advantage it would be to the Fifth Supervisorial district to have a man like S. C. Packer assisting in its administration. The electors of the district may look out for a whirlwind campaign.—Glendale News.

The Temporary Quarters of a Football Man

By DWIGHT NORWOOD

Johnny Hackaway was an athlete and a football enthusiast. He played a match game on the last day in November, in which he carried his team through on his own shoulders and so excited their gratitude that they carried him on their own shoulders. So interested had he been in the coming game that he slept but little the night before from thinking of it and after it was over went home late from talking of it.

It was midnight when Johnny passed a house which was being moved from one side to another and which occupied nearly the entire width of the street. So dead tired and sleepy was he that he was tempted to go no farther, but climb to the front door, effect an entrance and find a resting place for the night. But, having not much farther to go, he trudged on till he reached his home. Feeling for his door key, he remembered that he was in football togs, with no pockets and consequently no key.

Knowing that there was no one inside within sound of the bell, he went back to the house on blocks, but found it locked. He broke a pane of glass, put in his hand and opened the window. Inside he found matches and, scratching one, saw that the house was being moved with some of the furniture left in it. A lamp stood on a table, which he lighted, then went upstairs. On the top floor he found a bed that suited him and, throwing himself on it, was asleep in two minutes.

It was 1 o'clock on Saturday morning when Johnny sank to slumber. When he awoke he heard church bells ringing. He rubbed his eyes and looked out through a window. The surroundings were not what they were when he had gone to bed. There was a church opposite, and there had been only dwellings. Moreover, persons were going into the church with prayer books in their hands.

There was a sound of dainty footsteps on the stairs, and the door was opened. A girl, evidently preoccupied, came in and for a moment didn't notice Johnny. When she did she gave a cry and made for the door. Johnny stopped her.

"Will you kindly tell me what day this is?" he asked.

As soon as the girl could find her voice she told him it was Sunday. Noting that he was in football costume, she concluded that he was not a burglar and became more composed.

"I reckon," he continued, "that I have slept about thirty hours. I entered this house when it was on Hinton street, and now it seems to be somewhere else. How did you get into it?"

"We came in last night after the house was put on the lot. We belong here."

"And slept in it all night?"

"Yes. We didn't need to use this room and didn't come up here."

"Well, I'll be jinged!"

"You're John Hackaway, the great football player, aren't you?"

"I'm Hackaway and I play football. How did you know that?"

"I saw you play in the big game the day before yesterday. You were splendid. I shouted myself hoarse when they carried you off the gridiron on their shoulders. Won't you come down to breakfast? We're late this morning. We didn't get settled very early last night."

"You're very kind. I invited myself to a bed; I won't sponge on you for breakfast."

But the girl had gone to the door and shouted:

"Mother, Mr. Hackaway, the great football player, is up here. I'm going to bring him down to breakfast."

Johnny listened for the reply. It was this:

"Oh, my, goodness gracious! I knew that would be the result of her infatuation. Pa, Molly's gone crazy over football. Go up and bring her down. Quick! Maybe she'll jump out the window."

John and the girl laughed, and John proposed that he go downstairs and show himself. So she led the way to the main floor, where a woman was in the kitchen frying griddlecakes. When she saw the football giant she dropped the turner and cried out:

"Oh, dear! Have I gone daft too?"

Molly went into the kitchen, and between her fits of laughing John heard her tell her mother what had happened, adding, "Just think, ma, what an honor—to have such a wonderful man for a guest and not know it!"

"And give him a ride to boot," remarked John.

An introduction to the members of the family followed, and presently they all sat down to breakfast.

"Fine location," remarked John, feeling somewhat embarrassed at breakfasting under such circumstances with strangers.

"We think we'll like it," was the reply.

"Much finer than the one from which you came."

Molly snickered.

John could have eaten all there was on the table, but he contented himself with his share, remembering that he could place it out in a couple of hours with dinner.

The rest of this story occupied several years, or, rather, a lifetime, for John and Molly. John was invited to come again now that they were settled, and he availed himself of the invitation. The old folks are dead, and John and Molly, his wife, occupy the house.

THE VALUE OF SALT IN THE BATHROOM.

Salt is not only a necessity in the kitchen, but it will work wonders in the bathroom. It is the cheapest and best of nerve tonics and the finest of skin lotions. Salt is to beauty in the bathroom just what it is to food in the kitchen. In fact, it is the solution offered by nature to most of our beauty and health queries.

Every one has heard of the splendid strengthening effects of salt water bathing, but few think of taking salt water baths in their own tubs. Sea salt can be bought in any drug store, and a large bag should be kept on hand in the bathroom.

When you come home tired out and nervous try a salt bath. You will find it invaluable for weakness and nervousness, and you will find that a month of the home salt bath treatment will take away all traces of that "tired feeling." In fact, the woman who bathes in salt water two or three times a week feels too vigorous and strong ever to know that tired sensation.

If the skin on the face or throat is flabby you will find a salt massage of the greatest benefit. This will make the skin firm and strong. Just take a half handful of salt and rub it into the skin—not too hard, for the roughness of the salt will redden and irritate the flesh, but gently and evenly. After a soft but thorough salt massage wash the face off with cold water.

The action of the salt, whether used dry or in the bath, is to enliven the circulation and to stimulate the nerves. This in turn makes the skin clearer, the color better and the general surface firmer and smoother.

Salt as a tooth powder is also at its best, for it whitens the teeth and hardens the gums.

When salt is such an aid to health and beauty and is so very cheap every bathroom should hold it.

FALL CANNING.

Practical Hints on How to Preserve Fresh Fruits.

Generally speaking, preserving means the cooking of fruits in an equal weight of sugar, long enough for the fruit to keep without being air tight. Canning may be done with little or no sugar and just enough cooking to thoroughly heat the fruit, but air must be excluded.

The same general directions apply to each process.

Needed Articles.—Granite or porcelain lined kettles or stewpans, with bales or handles and slips for convenience in pouring.

Perhaps the two quart size is most used, but if one can afford it several sizes will be found very convenient.

A small, sharp steel paring knife or, better still, a silver plated fruit knife ground down to a fine edge, expressly for fruit paring. Other necessary articles—wooden spoons—some with slits, a wire spoon, silver spoons, large and small, a skewer, scales for weighing, a hair sieve, a tin strainer and a supply of cheesecloth.

Preparation.—Observe utmost cleanliness of hands, utensils and fruit. Avoid anything that tends to lessen color or flavor. Use only sound fruits and vegetables. Clean and scald jars and covers. Use new rubbers every season.

Blackberries.—Half cupful sugar to each pint jar, boil ten minutes.

Currants.—Three-fourths cupful sugar to each pint jar, boil ten minutes.

Huckleberries.—One-half cupful sugar to each pint jar, boil ten minutes.

Pineapples.—One-half cupful sugar to each pint jar, boil ten minutes.

Pears.—One-half cupful sugar to each pint jar, boil ten minutes.

Apricots.—One-half cupful sugar to each pint jar, boil five minutes.

Peaches.—One-half cupful sugar to each pint jar, boil ten minutes.

Cranberries.—One cupful sugar to each pint jar, boil forty-five minutes.

Crabapples.—Three-fourths cupful sugar to each pint, boil thirty minutes.

How to Utilize Odd Bits of Soap You Have Saved.

Save the odd bits of toilet soap, the more expensive and highly perfumed ones as well as the ivory. When you have a good collection let them simmer in a little water on the back of the stove. When quite dissolved add violet water or any desired perfume and a few drops of lemon juice. Pour into desired mold and allow to harden. A delightful perfumed soap will be the result. Treat all bits of yellow common kitchen soap by themselves. You will be surprised to see how much good soap you would have wasted had you thrown away the useless bits.

How to Cure Freckles and Not Injure Skin.

Many women acquire what are called summer freckles that appear almost immediately on exposure to the sun and disappear a little while after the victim stays in the house.

The best treatment for these summer freckles is to bathe them frequently with pure soap and water, using a good face brush and rubbing the freckles until they are almost irritated. This friction excites the circulation beneath the skin. A good cold cream should be applied after the scrubbing.

An Improvised Boat

By JOHN TURNLEE

During the war between the states the singular methods used by prisoners of war for escape sound very gauzy today, fifty years after they occurred. But when one considers the number of men under arms, then figures the proportionate number of prisoners and remembers that one in fifty is not a large proportion of prisoners who made attempts to escape, he will see that quite a little army made the venture. For example, suppose there were 100,000 prisoners taken during the war, 2,000 men tried to escape.

Among the curious ventures made by Union prisoners in the south between 1861 and 1865 was that of Charles Dorrance, a private in the Union army. Dorrance was wounded during the operations around Vicksburg and taken to a house on a small plantation, where he was nursed by a young southern girl.

Every one knows how conducive to love is nursing. Mabel Owen captured her patient without any trouble, and he captured her the first time she saw him. She was a country girl, and Charlie was a city boy, with a clear, honest eye and a pleasant smile. It was not to be wondered that she surrendered on sight.

Had the captive of Cupid rejoined his command as soon as he was well enough to do so he would probably not have been made a captive of Mars. He dallied, and a troop of Confederate cavalry came along and took him to the camp of an infantry brigade on the bank of the Mississippi river. Mabel, on seeing her lover taken away from her, was disconsolate. When he bid her goodbye, moved by the strongest impulse in humanity, love, he whispered in her ear:

"Be on the lookout for me, for I'll come back to you if I have to come in my coffin!"

The day Dorrance was taken to the Confederate camp two deserters were tried by court martial and sentenced to be shot. A carpenter was at once set to work to make the coffins. He was doing the job in sight of the guard tent where Charlie was confined. Charlie noticed that he was making slow progress and heard an officer berating him, saying that if he didn't work faster he wouldn't get the job done in time for the execution, which was appointed for half an hour after reveille the next morning. Charlie told the officer that he knew all about making coffins—which was false—and would help if permitted. The officer accepted the offer, and Charlie went to work.

One of the coffins was a very large one and the other a very small one. Charlie worked on the large one. He did not finish it till long after dark and was permitted to go on, a sentinel being placed over him to see that he remained in camp.

It was about an hour after taps, and the command was asleep, all except the chain of sentinels surrounding the camp, and so was the guard detailed to watch the prisoners. There was a way open to Charlie—the river. Unfortunately he couldn't swim and had no boat. But Charlie conceived an idea. Boring holes in the upper edges of the coffin, he drove pins in the holes, then roughly shaped a couple of four inch planks into a pair of oars.

The pins were the right distance apart for rowlocks. The blades of the oars were the right thickness, but the rest was rather thin.

He was working within a few yards of the river, and, putting the oars in the coffin, he carried it to the water, launched it, got in, and the friendly current carried him out into and down the river. As soon as he had gone far enough from shore he took up his oars, thereby steadying his improvised boat, which was topsey.

Charlie had been taken up the river some distance above the plantation where he had been nursed and floated back to it. He kept awake till morning; then, being young and the young requiring sleep, he lay flat on his back and settled to slumber.

Mabel Owen arose early that morning, got the breakfast for the family and went out to mourn for her lost lover. She was sitting on a stump on the bank of the river when, looking northward, she saw something like a boat in the distance. As it approached it did not show the curved outline of a skiff. It was rather a parallelogram with bulged sides, at an angle. When it came near enough to be distinguished she saw that it was a coffin with a body in it.

Her first thought was that the ever changing Mississippi had washed into a graveyard and let out a corpse. But she couldn't understand why it had no lid. The greswome boat came on with the current till it floated directly under the bank where Mabel sat. A recognition of her lover and a remembrance of his promise to come back to her if he had to come in his coffin came to her simultaneously, and she gave a shriek sufficient to raise the dead.

It certainly raised the living, for it wakened Charlie, who opened his eyes and saw his girl bending over the bank directly above him. He sat up, grasped the oars, turned his boat to shore, and in a few minutes the lovers were clasped in each other's arms.

Charlie didn't stay long with her, however. He rejoined his command, but after the war returned for his sweetheart.

There is no record as to how the big deserter got on without a coffin.

Mrs. Thomas Meagher, of West 10th Street, entertained with a pleasant affair, Saturday, in honor of the ninth birthday anniversary of her daughter Geraldine. The house was testefully decorated, the Christmas colors producing a very pretty effect. The afternoon was spent with games and music and later the 20 guests were ushered into the dining room, where a table spread with dainties awaited them.

Assisting the hostess were Miss Marion Kennedy, Miss Dorothy Carmack, Miss Hamilton, Miss Ford.

To combat this condition Mr. Hayes entered politics by organizing the Good Government League of Santa Clara county, which, under his leadership, ultimately defeated the "gang" and drove its grafters and crooks from the county.
